

Hello Folks,

Remember we are having the final vote on the new by-laws changes at the next club meeting, so be sure to join us. If you are interested in running for club office, let us know ASAP as the deadline is approaching. Summer League is over and I think it went well! Dave, Chuck and I just put a rope rail on the Orange. A 4-H group came out to the club the other day and they had a great time. I've been in touch with the Cedar Rapids Tourism folks, and they're interested in getting us on the map! Our Board will meet with them this week, and we'll let you all know how it goes. Again, we've had problems with several doors left open, lights left on, gate left open, and this time the furnace blower was left on! Take care of your club and stay on top of this. The Rendezvous went very well. Jeremiah did a bang up job.

Shoot Clean, be safe.

Rick

Why Are You A Waltonian Archer Of Linn County

I learned about Archery back in High school during a couple of sessions in PE class but never touched a bow until I met Craig Waite at Waltonians. One of our first few dates was coming out here to come look at the 3Ds in the shed. Our pride and joy, a 13 ft tall polar bear. I wasn't sure if I should be scared or excited but realized then and there that Waltonian Archers was a whole new world! That was back in 2008 and I have learned so much about all the different facets of Archery; from Traditional shooting all the way up to Nationals target as well as the Travelling R100 3Ds and other large shoots under ISAA and NFAA. While I am not the avid shooter and do not practice enough to become one, I know that this is the place to come out practice or just enjoy the seasons in nature even! I have taken lots of shots, both photos and arrows. I know it will withstand the law of time if we keep it up and guard it with good stewardship and integrity! I wish I would have known about it sooner in life but it's a great place to be even now when you want to get away from the city and be closer to nature

HISTORY CORNER

1956 This is the year that the club purchased 80 acres of ground near Toddville. How to finance this was of some concern. Fourteen members advanced the money for the purchase of the land these people were: the Adkins, the Bakers, the Naxera, the Smith, the Vanourny, Bill Post Phil Rummels, the Wyatts, the McBurney, Mr. Naxera (Chuck's father). They were to be repaid at a rate of 10% per year and at 5% per year interest. The club was to be called Enders field in honor of Fred and Betty Enders. The club dues were to be raised to $12.00 a year and this was to stay that way until the loans were paid off. The dues can be paid quarterly. Four new life memberships were granted to Fred and Betty Enders, Don and Mable Seeger. The ladies auxiliary was formed to raise money for needed repairs at the club and the first Chairperson was Naomi Post Although the men worked miracles with practically nothing every now and than something had to be purchased and during the discussion about where the funds were to come from someone would "What about the ladies" when asked the funds were gladly given and another improvement went to the club. The grounds were purchased in the spring and a lot of work was need before the first Silver Broad head there was a queen contest and Eleanor Stegman was named the queen. Mayor Meahan crowned her. There was an extensive search for water

Exploring archery's roots in societies around the world, long before the present day.

Archery is one of the oldest arts still practised. This history will not only take you through a journey on the evolution of archery, but also through the history of mankind. Evidence of ancient archery has been found throughout the world.

The earliest evidence of archery dates to the late Paleolithic period, around 10,000 BC, when the Egyptian and neighbouring Nubian cultures used bows and arrows archery for the purposes of hunting and warfare.

In China, archery dates back to the Shang dynasty (1766-1027 BC). A war chariot of that time carried a three-man team: driver, lancer and archer. During the ensuing Zhou (Chou) dynasty (1027-256 BC), nobles at court attended sport archery tournaments that were accompanied by music and interspersed with elegant salutations.

DEVELOPMENT IN ASIA

When the Chinese introduced archery to Japan in the sixth century, it had an overriding influence on later etiquette and techniques. One of Japan's martial arts was originally known as kyujutsu (the art of the bow), now known as kyudo (way of the bow).

Modern Kyudo is practiced primarily as a method of physical, moral, and spiritual development. After certain ritual movements, the archer moves to the shooting line and shoots from a distance of 28 meters at a target 36 cm in diameter set in a bank of sand that is roofed over. The bow used is 2.21 metres long and made of laminated strips of bamboo and wood.

In the Greco-Roman period, the bow was more used for personal exploits or hunting, rather than warfare.

Archers are frequently seen on pottery at that time. The Parthians were horsemen who developed the skill of swivelling around in the saddle and could shoot backwards at full gallop.

Middle Eastern superiority in archery equipment and technique continued for centuries. With bows like those of the Assyrians and Parthians, Attila the Hun and his Mongols conquered much of Europe and Asia, and Turkish archers threw back the Crusaders. The Asian and Turkish bows were highly efficient and the record shot with a composite Turkish flight bow was close to 900 yards, far beyond the capability of an English yew bow.

MYTHOLOGY

The popularity of archery is reflected in the many ballads and folklore, such as for instance Robin Hood, to name the most famous one.

References to archery are also frequently made in Greek mythology, in which the story told of Odysseus in Book 21 of the Odyssey is a well-known example. Odysseus is mentioned as being eminently skilled in the art of archery.

Penelope, thinking that her husband will never come back after 20 years of absence, forms a resolution to determine which of her suitors shall receive her hand by shooting with Odysseus' bow. Odysseus, back from the Trojan war and disguised as a shepherd, is the only one able to draw his own bow and shoot an arrow through twelve rings. This way he can prove to his wife who he is and defeat all of those who had taken advantage of his long absence.

English literature also honours the longbow for famous victories in the battles of Crecy, Agincourt and Poitiers.

The first known organised competition in archery was held at Finsbury, England in 1583 and had 3000 participants. By the time of the 30 Years War (1618-1648) it was clear that, due to the introduction of gunpowder, the bow as a weapon belonged in the past.

Since then, archery has developed as a recreational and competitive sport.
